

Exploring the ruins in Mesa Verde National Park

<http://www.mnsu.edu/emuseum/cultural/northamerica/anasazi.html>

The Anasazi were located in the Four Corners region (Northern New Mexico west of the Pecos River, southwestern Colorado, most of southern Utah, and northern Arizona south to the Little Colorado River).

The Anasazi existed around two thousand years ago and are thought to be the ancestors of modern Indian tribes like the Hopi, the Zuni and the Pueblo.

Around 700 A.D., the Anasazi began a period of transition and advancement that changed them from the Basket Maker Anasazi to the Pueblo Anasazi.